SMART IRRIGATION REMINDERS

September might be easing into fall, but every Arizonan knows the weather can still get very warm at this time of year. For drought-smart lawn and garden watering, remember to irrigate in the early morning to reduce water waste from evaporation. And if you're considering adding plantings to your garden, wait until daytime temperatures are consistently below 100° Fahrenheit.

EVERY DROP COUNTS!

A little leak can waste a lot.

A continuous drip this size...

A continuous drip this size...	would waste this much water:
 1/16" =	24,700 gallons/month
 1/8" =	98,700 gallons/month
 3/16" =	222,000 gallons/month
 1/4" =	393,000 gallons/month

WATER FOR TODAY AND TOMORROW

As drought continues to impact the Colorado River and its reservoirs, we know our customers have questions about what this means for their homes and businesses.

EPCOR has a well-developed drought mitigation plan that includes a diverse water supply portfolio – and we're constantly working to optimize those resources for you. As the chart shows, water from the Colorado River via the Central Arizona Project (CAP) is only one of many sources of water we deliver. Conditions on the river are serious, but there are currently no direct impacts to our customers.

But living in a desert state means we all need to work together to conserve our precious water resources. You can count on EPCOR to do just that. We're here for you today and tomorrow.
